Danforth Foundation Offers 12,000 Dollars In Fellowships

Applications for Danforth Graduate Fellowships worth up to $12,000 are now being received, announced Dr. J. Harvey Hobson, Professor of Chemistry. Any student desiring information concerning the program may be obtained in room 102 of Brackett Hall from Dr. Hobson. He will nominate up to three candidates. These nominations must be submitted to the Foundation by November 1.

The fellowships, offered by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Missouri, are open to male college seniors or recent graduates preparing for a career of teaching, counseling, or administrative work at the college level. Applicants may be planning to major in any recognized field at the American Graduate School of their choice, but should not have already undertaken graduate work.

Approximately 100 fellow-

Seniors! Consider Graduate Study; Take Exam Early

Seniors planning to apply for a fellowship for graduate study next year should consider the desirability of taking the Graduate Record Examination when it is next offered on November 18. These scores are important in evaluating applicants for fellowships, and students who lack them may be passed over in fellowships considerations.

All seniors at Clemson will be required to take the Graduate Record Aptitude Test in the spring but the scores on that test will be received too late for consideration for most graduate fellowships and assistantships.

A bulletin of information (in which an application is inserted) provides details on registration and administration as well as sample questions, and may be obtained from the Graduate School Office or directly from Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey, or P. O. Box 27896, Los Angeles 27, California. A completed application must reach the ETS office at least fifteen days before the date of the administration for which ships will be awarded to candidates from accredited colleges and universities in the United States. Nominees will be judged on intellectual promise and personality, integrity, genuine interest in religion, and potential for effective college teaching.

Winners will be eligible for up to four years of financial assistance, with an annual maximum of $1,500 for single men and $2,000 (as well as $500 per child) for married men, plus tuition and fees. Students without financial needs also are invited to apply.

In addition to the annual stipend, winners will be guests of the Foundation at an annual educational conference held on the shores of Lake Michigan. Leading scholars are brought to the conference for lectures, seminars and personal contact with the Fellows.

These fellowships are unique in that they may be held for life, with certain benefits after completion of graduate work, such as financial assistance to attend educational conferences and stipends to purchase books and periodicals during the first three years of teaching.

Students may hold a Danforth Fellowship concurrently with other appointments, such as Rhodes, Woodrow Wilson, Fulbright, and National Science Foundation. Winners will become Danforth Fellows without stipend until other awards lapse.

Little Theater Tryouts Begin Monday Night

Tryouts for the Little Theater's coming production of "See How They Run" will be held Monday night at the Clemson Y.M.C.A. Both male and female parts will be read. Anyone interested in participation in the play is urged to attend this important meeting.

The Little Theater's first production this fall will be "Gigi." It will be directed by Mr. Ronald Higgs, a research engineer at the Saco-Lowell Research Center, and the role of "Gigi" will be played by Charlotte Greer.

"Gigi" is the story of a teenager in the early 1900's who has a difficult time deciding whether to grow up or not. She is much too busy munching on licorice and cheating at cards (even solitaire) to make up her mind until an utterly charming, older man finally resolves the decision for her.

Others playing parts in "Gigi" are: Midge Renart as "Sidonie," maid in the "Gigi" household; Francis de Vallee as the fashionable Monsieur Gaston Lachaille; and Ann Bond who portrays Alicia de St. Ephram, Gigi's aunt and teacher.

Also, Fran Moody as Madame Alverey, Gigi's grandmother; Sandra Stephens, Gigi's "Maman"; and Blake Sullivan will play in what promises to be one of the best of the plays ever put on by Clemson's Little Theater.

First Meet Of CCP Elects Stepp, Creech To Student Senate

Jim Stepp, editor of THE TIGER, and Mickey Creech, president of the National Textile Management Society, were elected to Student Senate from the CCP.

An initiation form was introduced during the meeting with a map explaining the area which would be included for clubs' initiation of new members. A motion was made and accepted to table the item.

Rat Queen's Coronation

Blue Notes Lead Off Rat Hop; Clovers Highlight Saturday

By HOYT BURDETTE
Tiger News Writer

Tonight the Central Dance Association presents the Blue Notes at 9 p.m. to kick off the first dance of Rat Hop weekend. Saturday's dance will feature the Clovers, a nationally known dance band hailing from the Washington-Baltimore area.

Irby Wright will again lead the Blue Notes this year as they perform for tonight's formal dance in the dining hall. This group made many performances on the campus last year and recently played for the annual freshman Converse dance held in the dining hall.

The Blue Notes have performed at other colleges including Newberry, Lander, and Erskine. Banyard Ellis is featured vocalist of the 14 piece band. The "Theme from Exodus" is one of 25 arrangements made by this popular campus band.

Friday's dance will be highlighted by the crowning of "Rat Queen" from among the dates of Clemson Rats. Sandra Scott of Hendersonville, N. C., was the winner of this title last year. "Rat Queen" will be presented to the public in Death Valley during the half-time ceremonies of the Maryland-Clemson football game. "Rat Queen" and her escort will receive several small gifts donated by Clemson merchants.

Saturday's informal dance, beginning at 8 p.m., has the CDA featuring the Clovers, who were discovered by the famed impresario Lew Krefetz who is now their manager. This group, while growing up in the Washington-Baltimore area, began singing together and none expected to end up in show business.

They did so well that they became the most popular students in their school. They started big and are continuing to be big.

In the AGE - DEFENDER Les Mathews says that "It's a feeling with these boys... a feeling they express with rare sensitivity and uncanny intuition. Whether it's 'Here Goes A Fool' or 'One Mint Julep,' the Clovers take the music and the words and balance them delightfully somewhere between rhythm and feeling and the resultant rendition leaves in your ears the delicate aftertaste of an expertly seasoned ragout..."

"Freshmen, this is your dance, says Henry Goodwin, President of the CDA, "and I hope you experience the enjoyment that has always been characteristic of Rat Hop."

Miss Tigerama Contest Beckons Clemson's Coeds

Harken, coeds! The Miss Tigerama Contest is upon you. Any coed that is interested in being in the contest must turn in a snapshot or picture of some kind of herself to the Dormitory Office by October 6.

All entrants must be Clemson College coeds, but a coed's picture may be entered by anyone. On October 6 the Blue Key Society will pick up the pictures and later will choose five finalists out of the original group.

During the last week in October, there will be a student body election to determine the winner. The coed that is elected as Miss Tigerama will be presented to the student body during the annual presentation of Tigerama in the football stadium on Friday night, November 3.

Ways And Means Committee Appoints Blakeney Chairman

Ken Blakeney, arts and sciences senior from Kershaw, has been appointed by the President's Cabinet and approved by the Senate as Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of Student Government.

The committee, according to Ken, will consist of approximately six persons. This Ways and Means Committee handles many projects during the year which affect the student body as a whole and the college.

Projects which this committee plan to work with include publishing a brochure of the Clemson College Student Government. This brochure will list all officers, elected and appointed, of Student Government and will give descriptions of these positions as well as an explanation of the role of Student Government on the Clemson campus.

Another plan of the Ways and Means Committee is that of bringing a bloodmobile to the campus in order to build up a reservoir of blood to be used for Clemson students and faculty and their families.

"The Ways and Means Committee has never amounted to much in the past, but this year it will play a bigger part in Student Government," said Ken. He continued, "Recently, a request was made for blood donations to replace blood used in an effort to save the late Dean Walter Lowery's life. Eleven people volunteered to donate a pint of blood and only 10 pints were obtained from the student body of over 4000. This bloodmobile project will facilitate matters when emergencies occur among the Clemson community."

Junior Class Sponsors Dinner

Clemson's junior class will sponsor a chicken or barbecue dinner before the Maryland game on September 30. These dinners will be held in the Field House and will cost $1.25.

Many Consider Berlin As Birthplace For World War III

The Berlin Crisis is considered by many informed individuals as the probable birthplace of World War III. Just how true this is, we are not prepared to say, but we do believe that it is one of the most important problems facing the United States today, if not the most important. All of us can remember what happened in Berlin in 1948; from all indications the same situation could evolve again, but with more serious results.

Berlin has become the testing ground for Communism versus Capitalism. Neither side will yield. . . cannot yield. The Russians placed the block on Berlin for two major reasons: the economic problems created in an already troublesome economic system caused by the exodus of skilled workers and professional men. Yet, how far they could "push" the Kennedy Administration.

Since the end of World War II, West Berlin has made gigantic strides in their industrial growth. While, on the other hand, East Berlin, under Communist domination, has remained an almost static body in relations to economic conditions at the end of World War II. It remained this way despite the East German Communists efforts to make it a showplace of socialism. In this respect, the United States has scored a resounding victory and free enterprise system has proved to be far superior to so-called socialistic "progress."

Several weeks ago, President Kennedy reaffirmed this nations stand as to the freedom of West Berlin. West Berlin itself has been called an indefensible city, but it is not this that we stand firm on — it is the principle of not giving up to Communist slavery a freedom-loving people. In essence, we have drawn the line and told Khrushchev, not to step over it.

Even through armed guards and barbed wire are being used by the Communists, it has not proved to be sufficient to stop the flow of refugees into West Berlin. "Where there is a will, there is a way." Even members of the East Berlin police have thrown down their arms and fled into the Western sector of the city and to freedom. If the grass is so greener on the other side of the fence, why should the East Berliner's cross this blockade? The picture of West Germany that Khrushchev has painted is by no means demonstrated by bustling West Berlin.

East Germany at the present is not recognized by the United States as a nation. Several years ago, Konrad Adenauer made the statement that West Berlin would not create too much of a problem until the Russians signed a peace treaty with East Germany. What is the reasoning behind this statement?

When Germany fell, the four allies decided to make Berlin into a divided city in a sea of communism. Access was guaranteed to all four powers in a treaty with Russia, France, Great Britain and the United States. East Germany was not a party to this treaty. Therefore, if Russia signs a peace treaty with East Germany, which Khrushchev has vowed to do, the powers would have to negotiate a new agreement with East Germany in order to continue to have access to Berlin. This problem can be argued, but this fact in itself puts the United States in the position of having to possibly negotiate and therefore recognize East Germany. This poses a problem on the reunification of Germany. Time will tell as to what happens.

Not wanting to sound completely pessimistic on this situation, we would like to bring some of the humor which always happens to appear in a crisis. A picture recently appeared in the Greenville News, showing a woman seventy-seven years old hanging out of a two-story window on the border of East and West Berlin. On the upper end of the elderly lady were two East German police hanging on desperately. Their purpose was to keep the woman from jumping out of the window and into a net below. On the other end of the victim—the old lady—a West Berlin youth just as determined as the upper "holder's on" was pulling vigorously at the woman's feet. As might be expected the cowboys won, and the elderly lady and her lower "holder on" landed safely in the net below.

We might draw analogy here—the lady as Berlin, the East Berlin soldiers as Russia, and the West Berlin youth as the United States. West Berlin is caught in between the struggle of two great economic systems — two powerful nations. Let us hope West Berlin reaches the same end as the old lady.

Coeds Present Problem To Rat Council

The Freshman Rat Council seems to be having a little trouble enforcing the Rat Rules. The biggest problem which they face is with our spirited freshmen coeds.

Several of the young ladies have the idea that they can get by without wearing their caps. Keep in mind that the girls only have to wear them for two weeks, but for some, this period of time is just too much. Several of the girls have already taken their punishment for violating this rule.

The coeds are always screaming equality, but we haven't heard any loud female voices in favor of wearing rat caps. They screamed for a coed lounge. They got it—equality. We hope the "real" Clemson coeds will not take this personally since most of them are in favor of rat caps for females. We wonder what would happen if a Block "C" hair cut were given to one of the offenders. Something to think about, isn't it?

Here are some suggestions we have for a solution to the problems. First, set up a special coed rat council composed of Clemson coeds. Next, let the members of the coed council draw up the rules and punishments for the freshman coeds. We feel that this would work out better for all concerned. Of course, it will be up to the coeds to take the initiative on these suggestions.

Under the present circumstances, we think that Billy Gore and his council are doing a great job. Perhaps it is the women's touch that they need. We of THE TIGER staff urge the students and the administration to help the council carry out their duties. Straighten up, guilty freshman coeds, the worst is yet to come!

I'LL NOT WEAR MY RAT HAT!

Point Of View

Are We Being Taken For Ride By Well-Known Organization?

By ZALIN B. GRANT
Tiger Editorial Columnist

Sometimes it becomes my distasteful duty to add my voice to the hue and cry of the dissatisfied at Clemson. I regard this task with revulsion mainly because I do not want to slip into the rut of the habitual grippers who fail to find a glimmer of good in anything.

But there are a few items that have been compounded and mixed together which, in the whole, need some discussion. First, the case of the nickel cup of coffee. What can be said? We come back this year to find there has been a hundred per cent increase in the price of a cup of coffee, the mainstay of every student during academic studies.

There are rumors—and as to their accuracy, I do not know—that the group backing the canteen "pressured" Dan into raising the price of his coffee too. If this is so, and quite possibly it is, it tends to further emphasize the policy of an organization at Clemson whose mercenary little escapades are wearing thin the understanding of the students.

This organization seems to be saying by their actions — to paraphrase Mr. Vanderbilt, the portentous financier of the last century—"The students be damned."

I could possibly understand the increase if there was a coffee strike in Brazil as there was a few years ago, or the taste of the coffee was improved, or the cups were clean. But none of this is true. It's the same dull-tasting coffee, served in the same dirty cups . . . only for a nickel more.

It would seem to me that an establishment such as the canteen, located in the heart of the dormitories of a college composed of 4,000 always hungry young males, would have to make an extremely good profit on the usual accepted mark-up for businesses or be under gross mismanagement. Inflation, oh, inflation. And while we're running in the same critical vein, perhaps a few remarks on the Clemson-Carolina seat locations would fit well here. As everyone knows by now, most of the student body will be sitting in the end zone during the game for the nice little price of $5.75.

Somehow the students were left out in the rush once again. Perhaps I am wrong, but I thought the contest was primarily for the students of the two fiercely rival schools. But of course last year, Carolina had very good seats when they played here.

And it is a joke about but true fact, that the worst seats in Death Valley are about as good as the best in Carolina's stadium. If Carolina cannot show any more consideration for Clemson than this, why don't we let them sit on the grass bank for $5.75 next year?

But not all is so bad at Clemson. No, No. A fine sight this year, surprisingly, is the number of coeds on the campus. Coeds, who in the past have been the topics of barrack jokes, have in the last year or so established themselves at Clemson.

With the advent of more girls, stricter rules for coed "rats" have been put into effect. It is easy to see which coeds will make good Clemson students by the way they observe these rules. As a matter of fact, a few cases involving coeds have already come before the Rat Council.

And with the record enrollment at Winthrop, the Utopian dream of girls' dorms at Clemson may be closer to realization than we think. Winthrop is suffering from severe growing pains; even with new dormitories, in a few years she will have expanded to her limit.

But here, at the foothills of the beautiful Blue Ridge, there is beautiful room for female dorms. To our beautiful coeds who greatly enhance Clemson's spacious campus, I wish good fortune in their every endeavor and in their quest for degrees (which takes some longer than others). I hope for a rewarding success.

Talk Of The Town

Leering Loggia Loungers Find Fabulous Flings Fascinating

By GRAY GARWOOD
Tiger Feature Editor

Get this now . . . you are on the Loggia awaiting your girl's arrival from a distant place for this weekend's dance. You look around . . . well, but casually dressed lads abound with a pretty fair sprinkling of young misses . . . and if you look carefully you will be able to spot that age old fiend that predominates at this particular time—The Loggia Lounger!

You have to be alert and quick with your eyes for this fellow is sly. In and out he weaves among the full dresses of the girls. Up on his tiptoes . . . down on his knees . . . any spot that offers him a good advantage over his prey is likely to be filled.

What do you see? Eyes that ogle and move hurriedly back and forth so that he won't miss a good thing that happens to arrive on the other side. Mouths that hang open so that you can almost see the saliva that drips from the fangs . . . yellow teeth leering . . . dirty sweat shirts with no sleeves . . . fingers that point this way and that . . . necks that cringe upward to see what goes down. These are the signs of a Loggia Lounger! What causes a Loggia Lounger? I certainly don't know, but it seems that if I didn't have a date I wouldn't want all the ones that do to know that I couldn't get one.

It is needless and hopeless to appeal to those of you who fall into this category to think of the reputation that you give our school by behaving in such a crude manner—like unto a slob, for by your very actions you prove that such things as reputation and outside appearances mean nothing to you.

The Loggia Lounger is not exactly like an old soldier either for he certainly doesn't fade away . . . he just graduates down the steps to the dining hall windows. Here, as the warm, gentle dusk ebbs into the loneliness of night, the Loggia Lounger finds some solace for his ignoble position in compressing his distorted features (possibly the reason for his being alone and dateless) into even more grotesque shapes against the magnifying power of the windows.

Pity them . . . for they know not what they do! Criticism, if mixed with praise, is far easier to take, and I feel that the freshmen and upperclassmen deserve a good deal of both for their conduct during the first pep rally of the season. Praise for the very fine voices that were raised in cheers which resounded from the amphitheatre past death valley; and criticism for the juvenile actions that filled the surrounding trees with long streamers of tissue paper.

A word of warning on this matter: In the past when students have violated a privilege of mis-used college property to a great extent the college has retaliated by confiscating said property or cutting down on the rations. The dining hall is one example.

If this gross mis-use of our expensive tissue paper continues the college may discontinue to issue tissue!

Another item that may interest you is the status of the sign. A few of you more observant readers will have noticed by now that we are again repeating a picture of the sign that stands proudly before the home of our president—known as Presidents (sic) Home. This sign is of small issue but even those should be not left untended.

One Man's Opinion

Head Cheerleader Election By Student Body Needed

By FRED BISHOP
Tiger Associate Editor

Two weeks ago, we came out with a column advocating the election of the cheerleaders by the student body. Since that time much discussion has ensued between interested persons and us.

In discussing the matter over with several of the cheerleaders, points were brought out in addition to those already mentioned. One point was that cheerleaders travel all over the country as a group and they must work together. If they were elected by the student body, then there would be a possibility of electing someone who could not work with the rest of the group. This seems, at first glance, a valid statement and it could possibly be true, but taking an analogy in student government, we see regardless of whom is elected by the student body, they seem to work together effectively.

The second point was so few students would be interested in the matter, that there would be a possibility of unqualified persons being elected. If there is little interest, the direct cause would lie with those in charge of the matter in that they cared very little in creating interest. We might remind those persons who are elected, that to say the student body cares little about elections is saying in essence the same about yourself and you're cutting your throat.

A point brought up by one cheerleader was why didn't this columnist advocate the election by the student body of the captain of the football team. Carrying this cheerleader's reasoning further—why don't engineering students elect the president of the Industrial Management Society. To point out plainly to the cheerleader the reason—the engineers are not directly concerned with who is the president of IMS. Likewise, the students are not directly concerned with who is captain of the football team, BUT they are concerned with who are the cheerleaders.

Perhaps the only point which we find credible is the one as to the complications involved in electing the cheerleaders. Therefore we are willing to make this compromise—begin with the election of the head cheerleader for next year.

The plan is simply this—let the student body elect the head cheerleader from among the cheering squad, but the squad will still determine who shall become a member of the squad.

The benefits will be several fold. The testing ground will be on the field at each football game. Each cheerleader will be before the student body and will receive scrutiny from the student body. Each cheerleader will have to do his best and there will be an incentive and a goal for each to work for. The position of the student body in that they would feel that sition would gain even more prestige and respect they had some choice as to who would be head cheerleader. After all, to be a leader, one must have followers, and to have followers, one must first gain the respect of those he wishes to lead.

As for disadvantages, we see none. We do not now, though, nor have we ever, professed to know all the answers. Our purpose is to provoke thought and discussion, so that a matter might be resolved.

This discussion is not meant to cast any aspersions on the present cheerleading squad. We have our own personal opinions, and the student body, collectively, have theirs. The latter is the one with which all are concerned.

We hesitate saying any more in this matter, lest we be called meddlers, but then an editorial columnist must make another person's business his business. For quite some time, we have sorely needed to increase the quantity of the cheers for Clemson. We feel that the cheerleaders should try to help them by making an increased effort to provide not only quality, but quantity.

Campus Appearance Deserves Praise

Turning to something which has been needed for quite sometime, we would like to discuss the appearance of this campus. About three years ago, those responsible for providing for this job came into much criticism from the Tiger and, because of this, a program was instituted to make the campus more presentable.

To this end, many have devoted thankless effort and time. We would now like to put in our two cents worth and congratulate them for the fine job they have done and are doing.

The appearance has improved considerably and with the cooperation of the students can become more fruitful. One never really realizes how well this campus looks, except in the spring when a new foliage of green appears, but we wish to thank all persons responsible for providing a college campus we can be proud of year 'round.

To the mighty Tiger Team we want to add our best wishes for the remainder of the season. As to last week's game we wish to rephrase a statement made by the Bashful Baron this summer that win, lose, or draw those gators knew the Tigers had been to Florida. As for the students, one thing that hasn't appeared and we don't want to see appear is the fair weather fan bringing out the "crying towel." The true mark of the Clemson Man is that win, lose, or draw, he does his task the best he can and moves to next one trying to do better. To the Tigers, we would like to say that regardless of what the record turns out (9-1) or (0-10) we're behind you all the way until the last whistle of the last game is blown.

PR's Glean Fun, Frost From Drill

By BOBBY DYE
Tiger Feature Writer

In the wee morning hours, who is it that is there to greet the dawn and gather the frost with their shoes—the Pershing Rifles. In the evening hours, who is it that drags in last to eat cold scraps—the Pershing Rifles.

After the year is over and numberless days have been spent in close drill, the only rewards for the effort put forth are the many trips and the satisfaction of having participated in an honorary fraternity. The trips have included countless Christmas parades, the annual trip to the Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, various military base appearances, and the Mardi Gras.

Among the activities scheduled on the agenda for this year's team are an appearance at the Mardi Gras in New Orleans, at the Homecoming game, trips to many Christmas parades, and to drill meets both in Washington and at the Regimental Drill Meet in Atlanta.

The record of the PERSHING RIFLES at these meets in the past speaks for itself in that they have won the Regimental Drill Meet for the past seven straight years and always placed highly in the National Drill Meet in Washington. Expectations for this year's team are set very high, and all indications are that these expectations are well grounded.

All of these activities and expectations are results of the untiring efforts of Lt. Colonel Billy M. Guice, sponsor for the group. It has been Col. Guice's purpose to better the PERSHING RIFLES every year, tying them closer to the school in their effort to represent the name of Clemson in the best manner possible at every appearance.

PERSHING RIFLES have one of the most colorful histories of any national organization. Clemson's PERSHING RIFLES were granted a charter by National Headquarters in 1939 and have worked to prove their proficiency in the art of close drill constantly from that date forth. Since that year, PERSHING RIFLES has grown to a highly honorable society and a top organization on campus.

Something new has been added to this year's team—a pledge platoon. Stemming from an idea shared by Col. Guice and Stan-

Chapters Bicker In National-Local Fraternity Fight

"Along Fraternity Row, local chapters are making up their own progressive house rules. They're rewriting the sacred rituals, pledging whomever they please, and beating 'the national' instead of the dean. It looks as if the whole system—as yet another goatroom is heard from—is on the way out."

So states a lengthy article on fraternities in the October issue of Esquire magazine. The principal reason behind the fraternities' impending doom, according to the article, is the increasing unpopularity of NIC policies among the local chapters, particularly with regard to discrimination.

If there is talk of discrimination in fraternities, it is taken up at the Grand Chapter meeting as the virtue, "selectivity." "Total opportunity"—a chance for all who wish to join a fraternity to do so—becomes the vice, "to compulsory assignment." An argument on civil rights produces a defense of "social rights" or "free association," and so on.

Nevertheless, what the veterans began in the Forties, states the article, a new generation of students seems determined to finish in the Sixties, as chapter after chapter drops from national membership rather than submit to the dictates of the fraternity moguls.

"Whether they will succeed in reforming the fraternity system or simply reduce it to a shambles," says Esquire, "is a moot question."

Record Buss Sets Style For Perfume

Which painting is most famous...the Mona Lisa, the Last Supper, or the Kreutzer Sonata?

Probably the last...though most people have never heard of it by name!

But you undoubtedly have seen it time and again. Picture a long-haired violinist grasping his piano-playing accompanist in a passionate embrace, literally lifting her off the piano stool to kiss her.

Two decades ago a perfume company began featuring this romantic moment in an advertisement which has since been published about 8,000 times and seen more than 400,000,000 times (four hundred million!).

And this figure doesn't include readers of foreign-language publications...from Chinese to Norwegian.

Painted before the turn of the century, according to the New York Public Library archives, French artist Rene Prinet first exhibited his "Kreutzer Sonata" in Paris in 1901. It is thought that the title was inspired by Beethoven's composition of the same name...perhaps to suggest the music that's being played by the romantic two-some. Curiously, Russian novelist Leo Tolstol wrote a book also entitled "Kreutzer Sonata," in which a jealous husband murders his wife.

For many years, the painting went unappreciated by the American public. Then someone at the Dana company got an idea. He saw an affinity between the picture...romantic, lush, mysterious...and the perfume Tabu. Thus, a great love affair was born.

In April, 1941, the painting made its debut in top fashion magazines. No explanation was given. The reader saw the violinist sweeping the pianist off her feet, observed who was paying for the ad, and assumed...naturally, that the lady was wearing Tabu.

Many people admire the painting. Every month, letters arrive at the 32 Dana offices all over the world asking for reproductions...people want to frame and hang the picture in their living rooms. The Dana company tries to satisfy all requests.

Some people are amused by the violinist...especially cartoonists, who have made him the subject of numerous lampoons. One artist switched the characters around and showed the lady clutching the violin (and her male companion). Another take-off depicts an aggressive lady pianist telling her violinist friend to get rid of the darn fiddle so "we can do this thing right."

Some people are...or were...annoyed by the ad. Especially Dana's competitors, back in the early days. They argued that perfume and passion shouldn't be shown together. "Decent women," they insisted, "won't want to be seen near perfume counters if this continues!" The competition also objected to the enticing Tabu slogans: "Stay away from Tabu if you can't accept its challenge"...and "Tabu...the forbidden fragrance."

But the competition soon reversed its position, along with its own advertising, as the lines around Tabu counters grew. Dana proudly contends that the violinist revolutionized perfume advertising.

Funny thing, though. Despite the fact that Dana has legal rights to use the painting, company officials have never seen the original and they don't even know if it still exists!

From time to time, the com-

So That's Why It's Unfinished!

pany has sponsored exhaustive hunts through museums and art galleries in this country and in Europe...but without success.

One lead did establish early ownership. A European printing house had made a reproduction of the work in 1920, and according to their records, the painting was originally in the collection of the Prince-Regent of Bavaria.

Subsequent information pointed to a Parisian gallery, a Leipzig dealer, a world-famous collection in Chicago, and a Nova Scotia antique shop...but all of these clues led down blind alleys.

Somewhere along the line it was rumored that the painting had found its way into the Hitler bunker, along with other art treasures looted from all parts of Europe, and that it went up in flames with everything else.

Then a few years ago, someone did approach Dana with a canvas purported to be the original...but art experts quickly pegged it a phony.

So, although the mystery remains unsolved, the violinist plays on...much to the satisfaction of the company, readers of the advertisement, and, no doubt, the fiddler and his lady friend.

Geometry Relates Man With Today's New Order

By JOHN ALLAN LONG

Last week a sophomore sagaciously informed me of a startling new fact he had discovered in his English literature course—that poetry "just hasn't got it unless it rhymes." If this astute pupil has hit upon some revolutionary theory of poetics, someone had better inform e. e. cummings that he is going about poetry the wrong way.

Aside from the absurdity of his statement, though, there is one interesting point worth noting and one which left me pondering on it for some time. It is the fact that his "discovery" is not revolutionary at all, thus there must be other staunch souls who uphold the sophomore's definition.

I will dub the followers of this family of ideas geometrical sentimentalists, because we must revert to the Hellenic civilization, to the classic period which stressed geometry and symmetry above all in their actions and responses, for the source of their line of thought.

Geometry built the Greek temples, straight and true. They are enduringly beautiful, yes, but only because its simplicity reflects to a certain degree man's position in the world at that time. For he believed the world to be a body remaining as calmly, flatly and exactly as those marble columns that encircled the temples.

But today man does not feel that the world is as neat and trim as that; he can not discuss or picture his position and his ideas of the infinitude of the universe in such geometrical terms.

Someone recently said that "geometry is a mathematics of assurance." It excludes possibilities, determinants, variables. Geometry is lost when one of its circles begins to rotate at a given rate or when two of its circles turn at different rates, and what happens when points A and B are added at certain distances from the perimeters of those revolving circles. Certainly this metaphor is vague, but it

Students Need Denominational Organizations

By ENOCH D. STOCKMAN
Campus Lutheran Pastor

Unless the denominational student organization recognizes, accepts and understands higher education as their proper sphere of activity they have no right to exist, or claim a student's attention and time.

At this point a sharp distinction must be made between the denominational student organization and the traditional denominational youth organization. The traditional denominational youth organization is a parish phenomenon, i.e., it has its roots and its life in a parish congregation, and its field of witness is the town or community.

In contrast, the denominational student organization is a campus phenomenon, it has its roots in the Church but is not an auxiliary of a parish congregation, and its field of witness is the academic community.

This is in no sense a judgment upon the traditional denominational youth organization. On the contrary, the traditional denominational youth organization represents a highly significant expression of the life of the Church, and the student organization is deeply indebted to it.

But the denominational student organization is not the traditional congregational youth organization. When the student organization becomes just another name for a youth organization, it has no reason to exist.

Why do I make such a drastic statement? Because my ten years of campus ministry convince me that the "average denominational student organization member" is satisfied with a program pitched to the level of a congregational youth organization. Their programs are of this nature, i.e., programs of interest to youth in general but having little or no specific relevance to the academic world.

A denominational student organization will, of course, give attention to those concerns which all human beings share, such as work, love and marriage, suffering, death; but even these perennial interests must be viewed within the specific context in which students live.

And what about all those issues which are of special concern to students, e.g., the relation of faith and reason, the difference between wisdom and knowledge, the implications of psychology or sociology or biology for the Christian faith, professional preparation and obedience to Christ, etc? These are ignored by the student organization with a congregational youth organization mentality.

The denominational student organization must have a compelling sense of a unique mission in the colleges and universities or it should go out of business. This organization must be inextricably involved in the life, the problems, and the needs of its campus or it should take a different name and not betray the intercollegiate movement of which it is a part.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"GEE, IF YOU DON'T REALLY NEED GLASSES—THOSE THICK MAGNIFYING LENSES MUST MAKE ME APPEAR HORRIBLY DISTORTED!"

A college is not a country club, although some so-called students on every campus are under that illusion. A college is not an activity mill, although some big wheels behave as if it is just that. A college is not a reformatory, although some parents entertain such a hope when they enroll their offspring.

A college is not a monastery, although there are always a few super-pious souls around who give that impression. A college is an INSTITUTION DEDICATED TO INTELLECTUAL PURSUITS. And a denominational student organization

THE GIRL I LEFT BEHIND ME

It happens every day. A young man goes off to college, leaving his home town sweetheart with vows of eternal love, and then he finds that he has outgrown her. What, in such cases, is the honorable thing to do?

Well sir, you can do what Rock Sigafos did. When Rock left Cut and Shoot, Pa., he said to his sweetheart, a simple country lass named Tess d' Urbevilles, "My dear, though I am far away in college, I will love you always. I will never look at another girl. If I do, may my eyeballs parch and wither, may my viscera writhe like adders, may the moths get my new tweed jacket!"

Then he clutched Tess to his bosom and planted a final kiss upon her fragrant young skull and went away, meaning with all his heart to be faithful.

But on the very first day of college he met a coed named Fata Morgana, a girl of such sophistication, such poise, such savoir-faire as Rock had never beheld. She spoke knowingly of Franz Kafka, she hummed Mozart, she smoked Marlboros.

Now, Rock didn't know Franz Kafka from Pancho Villa, or Mozart from James K. Polk, but Marlboros he knew full well. He knew that anyone who smoked Marlboros was modern and advanced and as studded with brains as a ham with cloves. Good sense tells you that you can't beat Marlboro's exclusive selectate filter, and you never could beat Marlboro's fine flavor. This Rock knew.

So all day he followed Fata around campus and listened to her talk about Franz Kafka, and then in the evening he went back to the dormitory and found this letter from his home town sweetheart Tess:

Dear Rock,
Us kids had a keen time yesterday. We went down to the pond and caught some frogs. I caught the most of anybody. Then we hitched rides on trucks and did lots of nutty stuff like that. Well, I must close now because I got to whitewash the fence.

Your friend,
Tess

P.S.—I can do my Hula Hoop 3,000 times.

Well sir, Rock thought about Tess and then he thought about Fata and then a great sadness fell upon him. Suddenly he knew he had outgrown young, innocent Tess; his heart now belonged to smart, sophisticated Fata.

Rock, being above all things honorable, returned forthwith to his home town and walked up to Tess and looked her in the eye and said manly, "I do not love you any more. I love a girl named Fata Morgana. You can hit me in the stomach with all your might if you like."

"That's okay, hey," said Tess amiably. "I don't love you neither. I found a new boy."

"What is his name?" asked Rock.

"Franz Kafka," said Tess.

"A splendid fellow," said Rock and shook Tess's hand, and they have remained good friends to this day. In fact, Rock and Fata often double-date with Franz and Tess and have heaps of fun. Franz can do the Hula Hoop 6,000 times.

The Fabulous Phi Kapps

Phi Kapps Create Rare, New Sound

Plan Merger With Bandsmen

By BOBBY DYE
Tiger Feature Writer

Fabulous Phi Kappa—long on singing and short on seriousness—have successfully managed to keep their crew intact after a wicked summer only to pick up the fast pace they set for themselves last year.

Phi Kappa originated as an entry from Phi Kappa Delta to the Fraternity sing last year. Instantly overwhelmed by the fun they were having and overjoyed by their receptive audience, the group decided to make a habit of entertaining the troops with a mean sound for the duration of their college careers.

Versatile is a lowly description for this bunch, considering their combination of two unusual traits, in both of which they excel. These two traits consist of putting out some fine tones and carrying on with antics unabated for a resultant show to top all shows.

This year the Phi Kapps are merging with another swinging bunch, the Jungaleers, in an effort to better each group by supplementing the others' needs. Not that either group is in dire need of aid but consider the potential now as the Jungaleers introduce rock 'n roll to their collection of styles and feature this quartet from Phi Kappa Delta.

The quartet consists of singers Emerson Byrd, Jakey Weichel, Willie Stephenson, and Speight Byrd. Emerson, short man on the squad, sings first tenor, plays the sax, and is an Industrial Management major from Hartsville. Next in line to the short man is the ladies' man, Willie Stephenson, who sings baritone and the lead, and is an Industrial Management major from Rock Hill.

Behind the shortest man and the ladies' man is the ugliest man, Jakey Weichel, who sings second tenor, plays the left-handed guitar, majors in Mechanical Engineering, and hails from Georgia's pride, Atlanta, a suburb of Augusta. Towering above these three is the big man himself, sports fans. Speight "Rater" Byrd, singing bass, playing a harmonica, stomping his feet, filling the role of chief comedian, majoring in Textile Management, and dropping in on the troops from Rock Hill.

Last year the group appeared at Junior Follies, commanding great attention after only nine days as a unit, and followed up with appearances at the Ladies' Man Contest, Fraternity Sing, fraternity parties, Senior Day's Lawn Party, and other various and sundry campus events. The group is now looking forward not only to repeating these appearances, but appearing all over the country and Georgia.

Style will be basically rock 'n roll patterned after the Four Freshmen. The new merger with the Jungaleers, however, will also introduce more informality, if that's humanly possible, rhythm and blues, ballads, and comedy. Never fear, the old songs that went over so well may also be retained—these being the Jimmy Reed Drinking Songs.

The quartet has managed to reach its prominent position on campus only through hard work, practice, and sheer ability. To put it mildly, this group is hell, well, and hardly ever sick. They claim they just plain enjoy working together.

Their purpose, according to Jakey Weichel, is "hoofin' and jivin' unlimited." As for Speight, he adds, "As for our future, we plan to sing as much as possible for church socials, sewing circles, money, or any other negotiable items."

A more serious purpose shared by the entire quartet and Jungaleers is the advancement of music and fraternities on the Clemson campus through as many mediums as possible.

Col. McDowell Receives Whacks Administered By Gen. Jones

By BUDDY YOUNG
Tiger Feature Writer

A lowly rat bent over miserably and winced every time a broom handle, wrapped with adhesive tape for a blistering effect, was soundly applied to the appropriate spot by Corporal Bob Jones, Clemson Cadet Corps, 1927.

Corporal Jones decreed 137 whacks a day, every day for 30 days, for Cadet McDowell and administered them personally, for the said rat hadn't liked the way Corporal Jones had played a basketball game and had expressed his displeasure by returning to the barracks and tearing up Jones' room.

This time Cadet McDowell

now is back at Clemson to assume the post of PMS&T as a full colonel in the army. To look at this dignified gentleman one could scarcely believe the tales he relates concerning his cadet days, but he vows them to be true.

Howard-Nugent, Tigers-Terrapins Clash

By TOM RISHER
Tiger Sports Editor

Clemson's fighting Tigers went down to a 21-17 defeat at the hands of the Florida Gators, but not without the Tigers playing one of their best games. The pattern of the game was set early, with the Tigers putting on a sustained drive to kick a field goal, only to see the Gators take the lead with a wobbly pass that skimmed off the hands of Joe Anderson and into a Florida halfback's waiting arms.

If the Tigers had any ideas that the quarterback situation was weak, the Florida game seemed to dispel these notions. The Clemson line hit as hard as any game I have seen since the Sugar Bowl. They were primed for the Gators in general, and Larry Libertore in particular. The Tigers hit him with everything they had, and even knocked him out of the game once, but he came back and won the game for the Gators. He was a real gritty little player, but I doubt very seriously if Coach Howard would trade him for either of ours.

If the Tigers play as well as they did Saturday, and can hold onto the ball, it is doubtful that they will lose many more. The Tiger backfield is still slow, but on offense they can get away with being slow, by utilizing the pass offense that they seem to have. On defense, the backfield is going to simply have to hustle a little more in order to keep up with enemy ends. The line play seemed to leave little to be desired, as they held the Gators at bay on defense, and did a good job of offensive blocking.

Bashful Baron Desires Turtle Soup

With the Terrapins in town this Saturday, Frank Howard is really hungry for a victory. I think that the "baron" would actually rather beat Maryland this year than the Roosters. He and Tom Nugent of Maryland have been engaged in a verbal duel for the past couple of years. Last year Howard was quoted as saying that Maryland beat him with a high school play, to which Nugent replied that you used high school plays to beat high school coaches.

It should be one of the most exciting games in Death Valley, as the Terps are always primed for the Tigers, and the Tigers will be ready for their first game at home. One of Clemson's main worries will be All-American end Gary Collins, who has played a big part in beating the Tigers the last two years. Another main worry will be the "high school" plays that Nugent seems so fond of.

Tigermen Receive Fabulous Tickets

Many of the students were disappointed at the seats that are available for the USC game, and I can't say that I blame them. It seems that the Carolina ticket department would be able to furnish the Clemson students with better tickets than the ones starting at the goal line, and extending into the end zone. The reason for this seems to be lack of a great many seats from goal line to goal line. However, in view of the fact that the Carolina students were given fair seats in Tigertown last year, it seems like some better arrangement could be made for the Clemson students.

In The Tiger's Den

Clemson's 21-17 loss to Florida at Gainesville last Saturday marks the Tigers' fifth consecutive loss on the road. Since defeating Wake Forest, 28-7 at Winston-Salem on September 24, 1960, the Tigers have been defeated by Maryland (19-17), Duke (21-6), Vanderbilt (22-20), Boston College (25-14), and Florida. Three of Clemson's last five losses have been decided by four points or less.

The September 22 edition of the "Gamecock" says that the Tigers hope to rebound from last year's "DISASTROUS" 6-4 record. The best season Carolina has They're not talking about the Big Tigers, their home-town high school or any NFL or AFL league team. It is time for intramural football to begin and everyone knows it.

Teams must be cleared thru Coach Wilhelm's office. Forms and information are available there (on the second floor of the field house) and the deadline for entering teams is 6 p.m. Friday, September 29. Play will begin Oct. 3 thus allowing time for leagues to be formed, schedules mimeographed and distributed.

According to Wilhelm, Clemson's director of Intramurals, the number of entering teams will decide the type of elimination play. Last year's record total of 49 teams played round-robin schedules. ED4 for the third consecutive year claimed the campus championship.

In addition to touch football plans were announced for the intramural track meet and tennis tournament.

Last year on a cool October 24th only 37 participated in the track meet. Wilhelm stated, "This year we would like to hold the track meet on Oct. 17. No signing up is necessary for this meet. One who wishes to participate need only present himself on the track at 7 p.m. that night. However, all who have an interest are urged to use the track to practice.

A man accused of breaking up the home of another need not be a rogue nowadays. He might just have bumped into the trail-

Coach Greenfield, always available to talk track and continuing to try to build our intercollegiate track fortunes, will be happy to advise any boy interested in any event. In fact if sufficient interest is shown in events other than the ones we have been including in the meet, our plans can be changed to include them."

For the last three years events have included the 100 yard dash, the 220, 440, and 880 yard runs, the broad and high jumps, the discus throw and shot put. Members of the track team, of course, are not eligible but will help conduct the meet.

Tennis Coach Les Longshore will again supervise the intramural tennis tournament. In fact Professor Gilbert Miller, last year's winner has hinted that he will help conduct the tournament this time instead of participating.

Messrs. Longshore and Miller are on the varsity courts every afternoon. A brief visit with them (they are expecting you and hoping you will come) is all that is necessary to sign up for the tournament.

Last year's 57 participants were a record high, but with enthusiasm for tennis mushrooming at Clemson, double that many is a possibility. This is one of the few chances the student has to play tennis on the varsity courts.

Swimming, annually a Fall event, has suffered from lack of interest recently, and will be

Tigers Seek Revenge; 40,000 Fans Expected

By FRED CRAFT
Tiger Assistant Sports Editor

Tom Nugent's Maryland Terrapins bring a three game winning streak to Death Valley Saturday. Last season the Terps beat North Carolina 22-19 and Virginia 44-12 to climax a 6-4 season. Last week the Terrapins barely slipped by a poor Southern Methodist team 14-6.

Coach Nugent says that this year's Terps are the best team he has had at Maryland in his three years. He has twenty-four returning lettermen from a team which won five out of their last six games.

Maryland has one of the biggest teams in the country, but the Terrapins will depend on an aerial attack. Their air attack should be one of the best in the country with two good quarterbacks in Dick Novak and Dick Shiner plus All-American end Gary Collins.

Maryland's famous "I" formation which has been used so effectively against the Tigers the past two years, will be as potent as ever for the dark-horse team of the Atlantic Coast Conference. However, the "I" is not their only offense and Coach Nugent can be expected to come up with some new wrinkles, especially against the Tigers.

Gary Collins, a pre-season All-American in everybody's book, is called by Nugent as "the greatest all-around end I have ever coached." Collins teams with Dick Barlund, a converted tackle, to give the Terps two excellent ends.

At tackles the Terrapins have two lettermen in Roger Shoals, a 6-4, 240 pounder and Dave Crossan. These boys are the only juniors in the front nine. First team guards are Tom San-kovich and Bill Kirchiro, two excellent linemen.

The center is Bob Hacker, a Co-Captain and considered by many as the best center in the Conference and the South. As stated before the two quarterbacks are Senior Dick Novak and sophomore sensation Dick Shiner. Both have been battling it out for the starting slot but Novak has the edge because of his experience.

Returning starters at halfback are Dennis Condie and Jim Davidson. Condie is the leading ground gainer returning with a 5.7 yard average. He is mentioned as the best running back in the Conference. Senior Pat Drass and Junior Joe Hrezo have been having a real battle for fullback, but Drass will start against the Tigers.

The Terps come to Clemson ready for battle but Coach Nugent made one error when he called Coach Frank Howard "a high school coach." The Tigers will be out for blood and will want to win the Maryland game more than almost anyone else.

The Tigers lost a heart-breaker to Florida last week in the 100 plus degree heat of Gainesville. Florida's head coach Ray Graves has been at Florida for two years. Clemson fumbled the game away and a poor long-pass defense let the Gators score three touchdowns. By statistics, the Tigers completely swamped the Gators in everything but the score. The Tigers came through the Florida game without an injury.

Dixie Sky Divers Busy Jumping Last Summer

During the summer Clemson College was quite well represented throughout the country by members of the Dixie Sky Divers, the sport parachuting club at Clemson.

This up and coming sport made possible a trip to Illinois for four members of the club including Butch Thompson, Mark Graham, Larry Jones and the club president, Ed Selby.

These sky divers were invited to jump at the 125th anniversary of two Illinois towns, Virginia and Mt. Pulaski. The four members drove out and jumped at Virginia on the 22nd of July and at Mt. Pulaski on the 26th of July. At Mt. Pulaski Ed Selby and Mark Graham made a double baton pass during a freefall from 7,000 feet.

These four were welcomed by the people of these towns and were entertained at the home of leading Illinois citizen Roger Briney and his wife. Also they enjoyed touring a grain elevator, strip coal mine, a million dollar drag line and the Dickenson Indian Mound. Mark Graham, Hal Baxter, Butch Thompson and Ed Selby opened the 4th of July celebrations at the Paris Mt. Country Club by jumping simultaneously from two planes onto the golf course.

Calhoun Hoffman and Ed Selby jumped with The Citadel Sport Parachute Club in Charleston. The Citadel has a newly formed, school supported club. It is hoped that in the future intercollegiate competition will be held between members of both schools in sport parachuting events.

Mark Graham, the secretary-treasurer of the Dixie Sky Divers, placed second in a statewide jump meet held in Walterboro, S. C. on August 13. Among some of the clubs represented were the Bulldog Parachute Club from the University of Georgia, The Citadel Sport Parachute Club and clubs from Beaufort, Timmonsville, Florence, Kingstree, Shaw, and Donaldson AFB.

Fumbles, Long Passes Give Florida Opening Victory

By DICK PREGNALL
Tiger Sports Writer

Florida 21-Clemson 17. That's what the scoreboard in Gainesville read at the end of last Saturday's football opener for both Florida and Clemson. A hard-fought battle which ended in a loss for the Tigers, and a well-deserved victory for the Gators climaxed the season's first football game.

Coach Frank Howard, a solemn man at the end, held up three fingers, indicating the reasons why his Bengals lost only the second opener since his long stay here at Clemson. The Tigers fumbled the ball away three, and three were guilty of a faulty pass defense which led to the victory for the Gators.

Florida won the toss and received the opening kickoff, only to be denied any yardage through the Tiger line. After the fighting Tigers had been stopped on their initial drive, Eddie Wernitz booted one of his five punts for the day to put Florida deep in its own territory. Again the Gators could not move, and were forced to punt. This time Clemson marched down the field and, with Lon Armstrong kicking a field goal, took an early 3-0 lead. This seemed to inspire Florida and behind the brilliant quarterbacking of Larry Libertore, who threw the "pay dirt" aerial, the "Sunshine Staters" gained a 7-3 advantage.

A Clemson fumble led to the second Florida score, and Clemson was never to regain the lead. At the close of the half, the Tigers had a march stopped when the passes just would not connect. Clemson halfback, Harry Pavlack, missed a desperation shot by inches at the close of the period. Halftime score: Florida 14-Clemson 3.

Clemson took the second half kickoff and marched with ease to the goal line, where Ron Scrudato went over from nine yards out. Armstrong's kick made it 14-10, Florida. With the aid of a fifteen yard penalty and a 45 yard pass that put the ball on Clemson's one yard line, Florida scored the clincher. Clemson moved the ball effectively at the end of the game, and Wendall Black scored Clemson's second touchdown, but this was not enough as Florida had won 21-17.

Aside from the 138 pound Libertore's shifty running and pressure passing, the most outstanding feat of the game was Wernitz, who punted five times for an average of 45 yards per punt. This should certainly put Eddie in the national spotlight as one of the nation's leading punters.

Even though the Tigers lost, this is possibly the best team that has been at Clemson since 1950, so let's all get behind the team and give them all of our support. Let them do the playing and let us do the cheering, and we could have an 8-2 or 9-1 record.

TRAILING THE TIGER

EVER enjoyed in 67 years has been 7-3. A 6-4 record by this year's roosters would be hailed as a highly successful season; whereas at Clemson an identical record would only be mediocre.

Clemson Cubs Open '61 Year Against Wake

The freshmen footballers played their final scrimmage game of the season last Saturday. The game was designed to see how well the first two teams would hold up under normal game conditions.

Harold Davis led the scoring with two touchdowns. Charlie Dumas and Jim Masco scored one each, and Jimmy Bell connected with Walt Goldman on a pass play that netted 60 yards. James Bailey made all but one of his kicks and the first two teams won 34-0.

The team looked bad at times, but because of the mid-afternoon ninety degree heat some mistakes were expected. The first two teams proved themselves worthy of their positions by completely dominating the game. The Tiger Cubs will have to work hard in order to win some ball games this year.

The freshmen will play all their games in the afternoon. After going to Winston-Salem for their first game the Cubs will play host to the University of North Carolina on October 6. The week following their trip to Duke on October 20 they will play the University of South Carolina in "Death Valley." The final game will be played at home with Georgia Tech on October 27.

Jimmy Bell will lead the team from the quarter post while Billy Ward and Harold Davis run the number one halfback position. Joel Jackson will be the top fullback and will add the needed strength to the team.

Bill Hecht will do the centering. Guards Jerry Rogers and Joe Alvarez will give the line plenty of weight and strength. Tackles James Vizethann and John Boyette have held their number one positions since the beginning of practice and should be the strongest spot on the team. Mike Troy and Walt Goldman will be the number one ends in the opening game.

Jerry Rogers and Walt Goldman are the captains for this week. Although these will be on the starting lineup there are many more make up the teams depth. Ronnie Fowler, Bob Harner, Roger Jarvis, and Dennis Patrick will be some of

Duke Grabs Early Lead In ACC Race

By BILL LINN
Tiger Sports Writer

Action within the Atlantic Coast Conference was limited last week, but outside action was disastrous to a few of the top contenders. Clemson, Wake Forest, and N. C. State all suffered defeats with only Virginia, Duke, and Maryland coming out on the top side.

Clemson's Tigers roared loud but three fumbles hurt them as they fell before a strong University of Florida team 21-17. Florida coach Ray Graves stated, "I didn't think they were that strong. It was a big victory." Clemson entertains Maryland this weekend in a top clash.

Passing wizard, Roman Gabriel, was not enough as North Carolina State fell before Wyoming 15-14. A safety gave the Cowboys their second win of the year. N. C. State travels to North Carolina Saturday to try to get in the win column.

An outclassed Wake Forest team toppled before Ronnie Bull and Company as the Baylor Bears downed the Demon Deacons 31-0. Wake Forest keeps South Carolina company this weekend at Winston-Salem.

In ACC action, Duke had to pull all strings to down a strong, fired-up South Carolina team 7-6 last Saturday night. Duke's victory was a result of a costly fumble. The surprising Gamecocks hope to make Wake Forest pay for the 7-6 loss.

The Maryland Terrapins hung on for dear life in the second half to defeat a weak Southern Methodist team 14-6. S.M.U. has not won a game since 1959. Maryland travels to Tigertown this weekend to do battle with the revengeful Tigers.

Virginia snapped the nation's longest losing streak as they downed William and Mary 21-6. It was a glorious day at Charlottesville as new Head Coach Bill Ellis' boys ended their streak at 28 games. However, their losses will probably begin again as they entertain Duke Saturday.

Last weekend the University of North Carolina was idle and usher in their 1961 season at home against North Carolina State. After the first week of action, Duke rests on top as predicted in pre-season polls. All other teams have no conference record except South Carolina which rests in the cellar.

Student Support Cabinet Release

Ken Blakeney, Civil Ways & Means Committee, is contacting the proper authorities about the Blood Mobile program that we hope to initiate this fall. He will report all details to the cabinet Monday night.

Bob Newton has called a meeting of the Sophomore Class at 7 p.m. Monday for the purpose of nominating candidates for class treasurer to replace a vacancy left by Sam Phillips.

Last year the Student Body "adopted" the boys in the Boys of America Home, which is located in Greenville. The cabinet has decided to undertake this project again this year. We plan to organize periodic visits by students to the home this year.

We hope the students will give financial support for gifts to be presented to the boys at Christmas time. Arrangements are being made to bring the boys to the campus for various activities during the year.

A meeting of the delegates to the State Student Legislature for the purpose of discussing legislation and other details will be called by Bob Newton next week.

Freshmen! Your vote this Tuesday will have a definite bearing on your future as well as the future of your class.

We urge each freshman to take advantage of his opportunity to elect his representatives in Student Government by voting on Tuesday. The officers and senators elected by you will be your voice in the Student Government.

Paul Goodson, SUSGA arrangements chairman, gave a report to the cabinet Monday night outlining the basic organizational structures of his committees. The committees are as follows: 1. Pre-meeting Information Folder Committee; 2. Information and Room Reservation Committee; 3. Panel Discussion and Post Report Committee; 4. Registration Committee; 5. Physical Arrangements Committee. Paul will present head recommendations on Monday.

Jim Brabham is now active in his capacity as liaison-officer. He will transmit information between the three branches of the Student Government. This is the first time Student Government has had a position of this nature. Jim's work has already proved that this is a needed function in order to facilitate accurate communications between the different branches.

Livestock Line Up

Letters To Tom

Dear Tom:

Thank you for the informative and detailed article about the Physics Building. With so much favorable in the article it seems ungracious to look for errors, but there is one that should be corrected.

It would be nice if the building were being paid for by the National Science Foundation, but unfortunately this is not true. It is being paid for by you. That is, the tuition which you and other Clemson students pay now and for some time to come will be used to pay for this and other new buildings which were financed by tuition bonds.

Sincerely yours,
L. D. Huff, Head
Department of Physics

Sept. 20, 1961

Dear Tom,

From where you sit you have probably seen and heard a lot of things, but there are some things that you can't see or hear. I would like to tell you about one thing that you haven't had the opportunity from your post in front of Tillman Hall.

You will probably remember that last year there was something said about the cost of delivering The Tiger to the married students. Well, we didn't think too much about that because the reason that was given was plausible enough. We married students are in the position to see the rising costs involved in production, whether it be a newspaper or a family.

This one particular thing that I want to tell you about is: You should be able to hear The Tiger truck roar down Milkyway to drop our editor, Jim Stepp, at his door. Ridiculous, isn't it?

Robert Wrenn
Class of '63

Editor's Note:

We have new position open on staff for a truck driver, interested, Mr. Wrenn?

Hard At Work Senate Release

The Student Senate has been hard at work since last Spring preparing legislation, making nominations, and transacting various other business. The first meeting was held on May 11 at which the following officers were elected: President, Jerry Harmon; Secretary, Preston Earle; Assistant Secretary, Jim Willcox; Chaplain, Hal Littleton.

At this meeting Doug Richardson introduced a bill concerning the election of members to the South Carolina Student Legislature; this bill was passed at the following meeting. The bill states:

1. That the President of the Student Body, the President of the Senate, and the chairman of the High Court be standing members of this delegation.

2. That the President of the Student Body be authorized to appoint two (2) delegates, at the beginning of the school year during which the Legislature is to convene, from the student body at large.

3. That the remaining delegates be elected from a joint meeting of the Senate, the High Court, the President's Cabinet, and all class officers.

4. That from this delegation the two senators to represent Clemson College shall be elected by this delegation.

5. That those persons who were nominated by the joint meeting of the Senate, the High Court, and the President's Cabinet, and not elected shall serve as alternates; and, if more alternates are necessary, they shall be appointed by the President of the Student Body.

At the final meeting of the Spring semester several committees were appointed and approved. These were:

Rules Committee: Tim Timmerman; Hal Littleton; Doug Richardson; Wayne Kennedy; and Jim Harris.

Financial Review Board: Sonny Sykes and Cecil Davenport. Ways and Means Committee: Ken Blakeney, chairman.

SUSGA Host Chairman: Paul Goodson.

Corresponding Secretary of Student Government: Becky Epping.

Communications: Jim Brabham.

Insurance Committee: Tom Fincher and Carrol Bobb.

Also, at this meeting delegates and alternates to the South Carolina Student Legislature were elected. They are as follows:

Doug Richardson, Tim Timmerman, Steve Long, Jim Harris, Hal Littleton, Bob Wall, Henry Rentz, Martin Stokes, Jim Caughman, John Collins, Billy Gore, Don Hellig, Jim Belk, John Brownlee, David Moorehead, Charlie Hagood, Tatum Gressette, and Wayne Kennedy.

The first meeting of the Fall semester was highlighted by a report from the President of the Student Body, Bob Newton. The Senate is now considering the following recommendations:

1. Plans are being made to get a Bloodmobile to visit the college.

2. A committee to study the college building program, including a new library and student center, is being formed.

3. The cabinet wants a legislative code set up to facilitate filing of bills passed by the senate.

4. A weekly radio program and Tiger article will report business transacted in the senate and president's cabinet.

5. Nominations of Jim Caughman and Doug Richardson to the parking committee were presented.

first time in twenty years. As soon as the game ended, he and two other cadets ran to Tillman Hall and gained entry to the bell tower, and rang the bell until after sunset; "My head rang for three years after that episode!" relates the Colonel.

In those days the cadets had two special trains to take them to the Carolina game where they pitched pup tents and camped at the state fair for a week. On the night before the big game the Carolina freshmen were required to keep huge bonfires burning at all entrances to the campus to keep the cadets from entering the campus and disturbing the sleep of the Carolina football players. Of course, you know what the job of the Clemson freshman was... get through! A happy look came to the Colonel's face as he recalled those "quiet" nights.

The next day Clemson defeated Carolina, 28-0, and Cadet McDowell was one of the first down to uproot the goalposts and carry them triumphantly back to Clemson.

Colonel McDowell graduated from high school in 1927 with no idea of where he wanted to go to college. During the summer he visited a friend in Asheville who brought him by Clemson for a visit, as a result of which he enrolled that fall. He doesn't seem to have ever regretted his decision.

It seems that Col. McDowell causes some disturbances wherever he goes—immediately after his arrival in Hawaii the volcano erupted for the first time in many years. "It was the most remarkable sight I've ever seen in my life," recalls the Colonel; "I'll always remember it." He also visited several islands which were soon after used as atomic bomb testing sites.

Two Party System Begins

Goldwater Democrats Finally Came Out Into Open; Republican Choice Enters U. S. Senate Race

By BILL SCHACHTLE
Tiger Special News Writer

Well, well, our Goldwater Democrats have finally come out into the open with the publicity that there will be a Republican nominee in the United States Senate race. Senator Olin D. Johnston, an ex-World War I sergeant, ought to have his hands full with the '62 elections. Governor Hollings has not officially announced his candidacy yet, but you'd be safe to bet your last clean shirt that before the '62 curtain is drawn, the Fritz for Senate machine will be cranked up and rearing to go.

Our '62 elections should serve as some indication as to the effect of a true two party system in South Carolina. Up until the Boineau election last summer, South Carolina has always fallen prey to some form of States Rights, or more vividly, Dixiecrat movement when dissatisfaction with the Democratic party prevailed. This type of maneuver pacified the home-front but was of absolutely no national significance. Maybe now we'll be in a position to banter with the most appealing of the two parties.

Presidential Firsts

The first presidents relied on horses for transportation. President Pierce, the first president to be arrested, while on horseback, "accidentally" ran down a woman and was placed under arrest by a constable but was released immediately. The only other president to be arrested, Grant, was exceeding the Washington speed limit while driving a "spirited" horse. Arrested by a policeman, Grant made a deposit of $20 and commended the policeman for doing his duty, but he did not appear in court.

Jackson was the first president to travel by railroad train while in office. McKinley was the first president to ride in an automobile. In 1899, he was persuaded by inventor O. F. Stanley to take a brief ride in a Stanley Steamer. Theodore Roosevelt used automobiles frequently for official and unofficial use. Taft was the first president to make regular use of an automobile at the White House.

The first official White House car was a huge, high-wheeled brougham or laudault, with folding top. During Taft's years in office, two other automobiles were bought—an open touring car to carry Secret Service men and to serve as a motor escort wherever the President's car went, and a luxurious limousine for state use. Harding was the first president to ride to his inauguration in an automobile.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was the first president to use an airplane for transportation during his term of office. Eisenhower was the first president to use a helicopter. Eisenhower was also the first president who had been licensed to pilot an airplane.

Modern Communications Used

Harding was the first president to make a speech heard by radio audience, on June 14, 1922, at the dedication of the Francis Scott Key Memorial at Fort McHenry, Baltimore, F. D. Roosevelt was the first president to appear on television, on April 30, 1939, at the opening of the World's Fair in New York City. Truman was the first to make a televised address from the White House, on October 15, 1947.

There are many firsts which were claimed by many of our thirty-five presidents. There is one category, though, which hits close to home here at Clemson. The first of nine presidents who did not attend college was George Washington; number nine is none other than Harry S. Truman. Never underestimate the power of shrewd political maneuvers!

Bob Hunt Becomes New Treasurer Of S. C. State Student Legislature

Bob Hunt, I.M. junior from Camden, has recently been appointed treasurer of the South Carolina State Student Legislature. Bob is a member of the Numeral Society, Student Senate and the Clemson Industrial Management Society.

In acceptance, Bob said, "Appointment to the Student Legislature is an honor; it will afford me an insight into the mechanics, functionings and responsibilities of state government that I would not have had, otherwise. I shall endeavor to fulfill the responsibilities of the office invested in me to the best of my ability."

The appointment was made by Bill Schachte, Governor of S.C.S.S.L., for the remainder of the current session of the legislature. Bill said, "We of Student Legislature are very happy that Bob is in a position to accept this appointment. As treasurer, Bob is a ranking member of the Interim Council, which is the policy making body of the S.C.S.S.L."

BOB HUNT

As treasurer, Bob will be responsible for the outlay of money by officers of the legislature and collection of dues from the different schools in the body, which is representative of some 25,000 college students in the state.

The South Carolina State Student Legislature is one of four similar organizations in the United States. The other three states are North Carolina, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. S.C.S.S.L. meetings are held in Columbia; the December session is a legislative session and the February session is devoted to observation of the General Assembly of the state.

zation has a heavy responsibility to see that its members are so dedicated. In other words, the denominational student organization should promote scholarship, not as something peripheral to its main purpose but at the very heart of its purpose. It should provide the motivation for its members to take advantage of opportunities to study the Christian faith so as they grow in mastery of secular subjects they may also grow in their knowledge and appreciation of their heritage as Christians.

As a campus pastor the solemn and awful responsibilities of my office frightens me, and my continuing prayer is that God will grant me the wisdom and the strength to challenge students in their pursuit of Christian knowledge.

point to re-locate the group.

The home football games bring an entirely different feeling from the freshman class. The payoff for the college spirit program has arrived. The freshmen backing Clemson, the college of their choice, thoroughly enjoy the participation emphasized by the upperclassmen. This ultimate enjoyment is exercised wholeheartedly, even though the exclusive pep rally the previous night wasn't quite as enjoyable.

In summary, the freshmen considering all these requests of the sophomores, will hold a genuine type of respect for them. After all these men have been through the same thing and are merely fulfilling their obligation to Clemson by keeping the spirit of the college going with the best possible ideals of sportsmanship. Through the course of the freshmen's stay at Clemson, true admiration is withheld for the sophomores for this. Especially for the freshmen, through this experience they can plan their role for the freshman class next year with this sport labeled, "Revenge."

Rat Council Passes Judgment On Coeds Without 'Rat' Hats

Many unfortunate Rats were summoned to Rat Court Monday. Those coeds reported for not wearing Rat Caps were as follows: Ammie Owings, Gail Garrison, Randy Praete, Lydia Thraatt, Sandy Cochran and Linda Huff. These girls were sentenced to sweep the quadrangle till it was clean and to polish the cannons by the flagpoles.

Lawton King and Stewart Caplan came before the Court for not wearing Rat Caps and were given a choice of wearing their caps continuously from now on or a Block "C" in their hair.

Ken Himelright was sent before the court for not cheering in the dining hall. He was released with no charges by the council's judgement. Roger Jarvis and Larry Orr received Block "C" haircuts. Roger failed to wear his hat and Larry had yet to have his hair cut.

This year's Freshman Rat Council is composed of several outstanding boys. Jack Neely, a sophomore from Spartanburg, is majoring in Textile Chemistry. He is a member of SAZ social fraternity and the professional society A.A.T.C.C.

Last year Jack was a member of the Army Freshman Drill Platoon. Jack says, "It takes a while for a freshman to learn the traditions of Clemson. I think the present freshman class, as a whole, is doing a fine job."

Tatum Gressette, a junior from Columbia, majoring in mechanical engineering, is vice-president of the junior class. He is also a member of Phi Eta Sigma, Pershing Rifles, Tiger Brotherhood, and DKA fraternity. Tatum is also a cheerleader. Tatum believes that "Freshmen this year have shown more respect for Rat Council. This is good, not only for themselves, but more so for the spirit and traditions of Clemson."

Phi Eta Sigma, DKA fraternity, and the Clemson track team. He is presently vice-president of the sophomore class and was president of the freshman class. "I am pleased with the spirit and enthusiasm that the class of 1965 has shown and feel that they will continue to carry out the traditions of Clemson," Dave stated.

Wendell Black, a senior hailing from Saluda, is majoring in industrial management. Wendell, one of our finest and most outstanding seniors, is a member of Delta Phi Kappa fraternity, Scabbard and Blade, Blue Key, Tiger Brotherhood, Block "C" Club, and Clemson football team. "As a whole, I feel that the Freshmen are upholding the spirit and traditions of Clemson College. I hope this continues to a greater degree in the future."

Billy Gore, another boy from Columbia, is a sophomore majoring in pre-dental. He is Chairman of Freshman Court. Billy has served as President of the Freshman YMCA Council, on the "Y" Cabinet and Junior Taps staff. He was a member of the Army Freshman Drill Platoon last year. Billy is presently president of the sophomore class.

Billy said, "Since everyone has been speaking for the freshmen, I would like to praise the fellows working with me on Rat Court. I feel that I am very fortunate to have such fine Clemson men on the Council."

"Their positions are time-consuming, include hard work, require wisdom and good judgment, and invite criticism as we have discovered. However, the council has been fair and has used good judgment in the court cases thus far defending the Clemson Constitution and traditions."

Bob Newton, Student Body President, stated, "The Freshman Court has been doing an outstanding job so far this year and, in my estimation will continue with distinction and sincerity."

Dr. Gladden To Lead Discussions On "Marriage --- Before And After"

On October 2, 3, and 4, Dr. James W. Gladden, President of the Blue Ridge Assembly at Black Mountain, North Carolina, will be on the Clemson campus leading discussions with students on "Marriage --- Before and After."

Dr. Gladden is a former professor at the University of Kentucky and Regional Consultant for the American Council of Family Relations. He has worked extensively in his specialized field of family, marriage, and community. He is eminently qualified to discuss questions or problems in marriage and family life, and is brought to the Clemson campus by the Clemson YMCA. There will be two discussions each evening. On Monday, October 2, the first one will be at 6 p.m. for married students. On Tuesday and Wednesday, October 3rd and 4th, the discussion for married students and their wives will be at 6:30, and the one for unmarried students at 8 p.m.

Dr. Gladden will also be available for individual conferences or counseling each afternoon between the hours of 2 and 5. He will be at the YMCA for those who may wish to talk with him. Students are urged to take advantage of this opportunity to be associated with a consultant who is so well qualified to discuss these questions.

Some of the discussions for married students will be on "The Married," and "Making Our Marriages Christian." Some of the discussions for unmarried students will be on "How We Learn to Love," "Why, Whom, and When to Marry," and "Is Today's Dating Good Preparation for Marriage?"

New Pre-Law Society Officers

Law Society Organizes

The Pe-Law Society of Clemson College, second such organization in the state, held its organizational meeting Monday night. Officers for the group were elected by the charter members and plans for the year were discussed.

William L. Schachte, Jr., junior arts and sciences major from Charleston, was elected president. Vice-president of the group is Martin L. Stokes, arts and sciences senior of Greer, and secretary-treasurer is Becky Epting, senior arts and sciences student from Clemson.

Immediate plans for the Society include writing a constitution for the group and the selection of a faculty advisor. The Pre-Law Society is not a political organization, the officers stressed, but rather is a group open to all students interested in any phase of the legal or business-related professions.

"The inception of this idea for a Pre-Law Society on the Clemson College campus should prove itself an integral part of student activities," said Bill Schachte, president of the group. "We want all students to know that our scope of programming does not limit this organization solely to persons who intend to study law. We shall be more than happy for all interested students to attend our next meeting."

The next meeting of the Pre-Law Society is scheduled for Oct. 10 at 7:30 p.m. in Room 118 of the Chemistry Building. Interested persons who wish to join the group are asked by the president to come to this meeting.

Some of the discussions for married students will be on "The Married," and "Making Our Marriages Christian." Some of the discussions for unmarried students will be on "How We Learn to Love," "Why, Whom, and When to Marry," and "Is Today's Dating Good Preparation for Marriage?"
